Dark Hours. There are dark hours; dark hours that mark the history of the brightest year. For not a whole month in any of the thousand of the past, perhaps, has the sun shone brilliantly all the time. And there have been cold and stormy days in every year. And yet the mists and shadows of the darkest hours were dissipated, and flitted heedlessly away. The cruelest of the icy fetters have been broken and dissolved, and the most furious storm loses its power to alarm.

And what a parable is all this of human fear of our inside world, where the heart works at its destined labor ere, too, we have the overshadowing of dark hours, and many a cold blast chills the heart to the core.

But what matters it? Man is born a hero, and it is only by darkness and storms that heroism gains its greatest and best development and illustration: then it kindles the black cloud into a blaze of glory, and the storm bears it rapidly to its destiny. Despair not, Disappointment will be realized.

Mortifying failure may attend this effort, and that one; but only be honest and struggle on, and it will all work

LINCOLN-ON EFFECT OF CURRENCY CONTRACTION.

I have already said that the subtreasury will reduce the quantity of money in circulation. This position is strengthened by the recollection that the revenue is to be collected in specie, so that the mere amount of revenue is not all that is withdrawn, but the amount of paper circulation that the forty millions would serve as a basis to is withdrawn, which would be in a sound state at least one hundred millions.
